
561 likely voters

Dates of interviewing: September 30, 2008

Maximum sampling error +/- 4%

Georgia General Election Poll

	%
McCain	50%
Obama	44%
Other	2%
Undecided	4%
	100

© InsiderAdvantage/Poll Position 2008

InsiderAdvantage/Poll Position polls are conducted by telephone with registered voters. Like all other major polling firms, data are weighted by age, race, gender and political party affiliation.

Poll Position Chief Pollsters Matt Towery and Jeff Shusterman have been independent pollsters for nearly 20 years.

For a subscription to internals and cross-tabulations through the election, contact tricia@insideradvantage.com

Analysis: "The race in Georgia is back on. But, Sen. Obama has little room for the race to become closer, unless former Rep. Bob Barr starts to concentrate on his home state. The African-American vote has totally collapsed to Obama (96%) a rare occurrence this far out in a Georgia contest. Independents have dropped to 50% for McCain. Male support has dropped to 50% for McCain and 44% for Obama. But, Obama is making little additional progress with white voters (24%) and unless he can improve that percentage, or Barr comes on strong and takes voters away from McCain, Georgia would, at this time, still lean McCain. It is possible the results of the debates could also move the race closer." Matt Towery